GO INTO ACTION WITH THE RANGERS OF FREEDOM

Be the first to discover the RANGERS OF FREEDOM

A BRUTE master of black magic has the U. S. A. in his hypnotic grip, and not even the F. B. I. can locate his secret hideout.

On the trail of this terror-maker race the pick of American youth—the RANGERS OF FREEDOM. The first clue is a dying lunatic's whisper, "Super-Brain Man... Headquarters..." A bullet clips him short.

Undaunted, the RANGERS OF FREEDOM smash ahead—to find themselves in the heart of Super-Brain Man's underground stronghold. Trapped! "Ha," sneers the skull-faced maniac, "you thought you could outsmart Super-Brain. All-seeing Super-Brain! You will do my bidding, rats—or die!"

No fighting Americans ever met a tougher predicament, ever faced a crueler death, ever fought a stiffer, more crucial battle for freedom.

Tabu, Champion of Justice, sees an Indian princess abusing her servant in their camp in the African jungle.

Tabu seizes the girl's arm...

Why do you punish the boy?

What right have you to interfere?

What?
But let us not quarrel, handsome one. I am Darya.

My name is Tabu.

Perhaps I was too severe with Siki... will you dine with me?

Darya sends the boy into the jungle to gather breadfruit.

Suddenly...

What was that?

Help!

A giant vulture swoops down...

The boy battles valiantly...

More of the fierce birds attack him...

Tabu races to the rescue.

He sees three natives carry the boy off...
Tabu follows their trail...

...and enters an ancient tunnel...

He comes upon a spectacle of horror...

A sacrifice to you, Oh God of the vultures!

The priest's eye falls on the jewel in Siki's turban...

He seizes the insect-shaped pin...

Tabu sees the priest place the pin in his own head band...

Death to those who touch the pin with evil in their hearts!

The priest falls screaming to the jagged rocks below...

THE REACHING DEATH

BY BOB ANTHONY

Ngobudi bleated with enjoyment as he braced his fore hooves and glared proudly at his adversary, sprawled on the dry grass among the boulders. That ponting black goat now struggling to his feet was his own brother, but young goats of the Khama mountains were strenuous in their play. And besides, Mambudi was not really hurt.

But Mambudi was irritated. He found his footing, braced his slim legs, eyed his black brother with wary hostility, and charged. Ngobudi’s mouth opened in a happy grin, and his little eyes gleamed with triumph. For his angry brother had fallen into the trap.

They were jousting on a flat space, clear except for the boulders at its edge, and nicely padded with soft thick grass that made it easy to escape hurt if one happened to be butted off one’s feet. The joke of it was that the flat jousting ground overlooked a pool. Mambudi knew all about that, but he had forgotten in his surge of anger.

Mambudi charged, Ngobudi nimbly dodged, and then, bleating gleefully as his brother shot over the edge of the little cliff, raced to the edge to watch the black goat splash into the pool. It was a lovely splash, and Ngobudi squealed, shaking his head until his fuzzy whiskers waved. Then something happened that made him catch his breath and sree, his knobby legs trembling.

Something was moving in the pool. Ngobudi couldn’t see it, for the water was stagnant and muddy, flecked with slimy roads. But there were ripples on the surface, betraying some motion underneath — and the ripples were moving toward Mambudi, who was pumping his legs and gasping as he made slow progress toward the pool edge.

Ngobudi called out in warning. His quavering bleat startled his brother. The black goat turned startled eyes upward inquiringly. And then the unseen danger struck.

A brown shining coil shot out of the water, fastened itself upon the black-furred body, and Mambudi disappeared in a sudden froth of water. A writhing tail lifted from the black depths and was gone. Then the gurgling water cleared over a struggle that was all but finished.

Ngobudi stood stockstill, staring with misery in his eyes and a sick fear in his heart. He knew what had happened. He knew what the brown coil was. It was Inkndiba the python. Once before he had seen Inkndiba strike, at a pool far below the rapids; that was the reason he had left that lower stream and come here to this onanga, where no signs of pythons were to be seen.

And now, Mambudi was gone. The foam flecks on the pool surface were disappearing, as the bubbles burst. But the water was rolled, and Ngobudi knew that down in the depths a relentless brown coil was squeezing a dead black goat. Squeezing, squeezing until the black body was no more than a soft tube that would eventually disappear in a cruel taped snout. Ngobudi could not stay. He saw ripples moving toward the edge of the pool, but he did not wish to see the brown thing slide out of the water with what had been his brother Mambudi.

On shaking legs he turned away from the cliff edge and clambered slowly into the crags, shivering, though the sun was hot.

He slept little that night, stirring and whimpering, sick and fearful. At dawn he stirred timorously out to the rich pasture. But today there was no joy in cropping the sweet grass, for Mambudi was not with him. He could not eat.

For days he wandered, eating little, growing thin. He slept in small sheltered caves, sick and miserable. Then one morning a strange thing happened. He was bending to drink at a new pool that he had found. Some trick of the sun made magic of his gray head and shoulders, and as he caught sight of his reflection it seemed that he was looking at Mambudi his black brother.

A slow fury rose within him. Mambudi was dead — Inkndiba had killed him! Very well then, he, Ngobudi, would have revenge!

He drank slowly, pondering his resolve. He could not see how he might fight Inkndiba. The python was twenty feet long, quick as light, and merciless. Ngobudi shivered. But he turned away from the water with his clever brain hard at work.

He trotted to the pasture and nuzzled the grass with a little of his old enjoyment. Now that he was stirred by an inner hunger for vengeance, his appetite for the lush pastureage was returning. He ate his fill, then trotted and slid down the mountainside toward the tragic pool.

From a safe distance he stood on a peak and surveyed the scene. The ananaza lay like a sheet of darkly colored glass, glittering in the sun. There was no sign of Inkndiba. He studied the rocky ground near the pool and saw no python. Ngobudi’s eyes narrowed. If Inkndiba was not in the pool or on the warm ground near it, then he must be in a tree. Coiled asleep — or waiting for Ngobudi to come by and be swallowed.

Cautiously he moved on to the next peak, keeping away from the forest. So long as he stayed in the open, he could outrun Ikndiba. He clambered over the peak and was about to leap to the next one when his glance fell on a heap that glowed brighter than the surrounding boulders and piles of stones.

It was a pyramid, but not the rocky rough sort that came into being when rock slid from the mountainside. This one was smooth, and brown. He jumped to a nearer crag, and then he knew that he had found Ikndiba.

The python seemed to be asleep; its long coil was heaped upon itself to form a cone, with the flat tapering head at the top of the cone. Ngobudi trembled, so violently that a small rock was dislodged by his hoof, and slipped and spanned off the mountainside. Ngobudi hardly noticed the rock—until it made one last bounce and splattered on the rocky valley floor only a short distance from the sleeping python.

Ikndiba raised a scaly head ever so lightly. Ngobudi might never have seen the movement but for the glitter of light on the black scales of Ikndiba's head. The little gray goat's eyes widened. He looked down at his foot, that had stirred that rock to its descent, and wished that the missile had struck nearer the target of his terrible hate. He stepped over to another small rock, and kicked it.

This one fell, and bounced, and bounced again—and flew off the last projection of the mountain to strike the brown coils fair and square. Ngobudi bleated with wild delight.

For Ikndiba was awake now. The flat head was moving, and he could see beady eyes flashing wrathfully. Carefully—for he did not intend to lose his footing and fall into the coils of Ikndiba—he chose another rock. This one refused to budge when he kicked it, so he lowered his head and pried it to the edge of the peak. Then he gave it a kick, and stood spread-eagled and wide-eyed, waiting.

That big rock did his work. It struck the pyramid and knocked it clear off its base. Ngobudi was all set to squeal his satisfaction, but what he saw left him silent with astonishment. Ikndiba had been sitting on a heap of eggs. Python eggs—a hundred of them. The thought of a hundred little Ikndibas slithering in his old playground stirred Ngobudi to fury. He began to kick, and shove, and butt.

Dust flew. And when it settled, the last of his rocks were still bouncing off the mountain, and the egg heap was buried under a crushing weight of debris. As for Ikndiba—

The python was writhing madly. Slowly stirred to a sense of loss, Ikndiba became a streaking fury. And now, streaking toward Ngobudi, who had ventured all too close to the valley floor!

The little goat quaked. Fear seemed to have paralyzed Ngobudi's legs. For a moment he stood, stiff-legged, while the raging Ikndiba moved with incredible speed toward him, his lightning undulations fascinating Ngobudi.

Then with a spring the gray goat fled. And as he turned, an inspiration was born in his nimble brain. So instead of leaping up, to the safety of the crags, he raced down the valley, on the flat ground, toward the pool. Toward the pool, and past it. He went by the spot where the python had caught Mombudi, and at a narrowing of the slow stream he leaped across.

Now he was out of sight of the pursuing demon. And quickly he scrambled up the cliff to the old grassy play spot. His heart leaped as he looked at the mass of rocks at the cliff edge. Then he ran to the brink, and looked down.

Ikndiba, to avoid a clutter of boulders, had taken to the water in pursuit. The wagging tail was just slipping off the rock, and the flat head was above the surface of the pool, cutting the water into countless little ripples.

Ngobudi pushed the nearest rock with a steady foot. Not waiting to see what it had done, he pushed another. And another. Then he peered over hopefully.

Ikndiba was not pursuing now. There was a turmoil deep in the pool. Then the python's head appeared, sneaking this way and that. Something had happened which Ikndiba did not understand.

And while the brown coil writhed, Ngobudi pushed more rocks. The pool was shallower now where the rocks had tumbled. The little goat could see one big rock close to the surface. He heaved with head and shoulder against a big one—heaved too hard, and tumbled off the brink with it.

Hurtling head down, frozen with fear, he saw the dark water and an evil head lifting from it. Then beside him the rock splashed, the pool closed around his head. He struggled feebly in the gloom of the pool, expecting at each moment to feel the merciless coils about him. But nothing touched him, and he worked his legs frantically. His nose, poked above the surface, and as the water drained out of his eyes he saw the edge of the pool and paddled toward it.

Rock scraped under one hoof and he made a last frantic dash—and was on solid ground. His legs flexed for the fastest run of his life. But he cast one glance behind him, and forgot to run. For above the pool Ikndiba's head was waving feebly. And between two great rocks, the brown body of Ikndiba was smashed and held tight.

The terror of the anansa was gone. Little Ngobudi stared a long time. Then, lifting his head, he pranced proudly toward the peaks.
YES, YOUR HIGHNESS.
YES, YOUR GRACE...

UHM... GOOD GRUB FOR TH' BACKWOODS!

GOTTA EAT FAST SO'S I KIN GET SECONDS!

SUCH HAWGS MY FRIENDS ARE... TUT!

LISTEN YOU THREE, YOUR TABLE MANNERS ARE TERRIFIC!

THERE'S ENOUGH FOOD FOR EVERYONE... IF YOU WANT MORE, JUST REACH FOR IT LIKE THIS... HEY! QUIT GRABBING!!

ANDY'S BOARDING HOUSE REACH IS LONGEST.

SMARTIES! SEE? I GOT THE PIE!

SEE HOW YA LIKE CAMEL'S FOOT WITH YOUR PIE!

OUCH!
The fight is on.

I didn't let that glutton of a boy get the pie, did I? I'm sore!

Andy tries to duck Terry by using the table as a shield.

Please! I wuz just hungry!

Cap'n Terry—d-don't!

Stop it! Stop it. You blithering cracker-brained idiots!

Sheepishly the gang obeys.

Aw... he's gonna bail us out.

This is the last straw!

He's gonna blame it all on me. As usual!

You're a bunch of lazy good-for-nothings! From now on it's no workee, no eatee... see??

Andy is set to work with a broom.

Whistle while you work. Yaaah! I'm starvin'!

Kismet is assigned to garbage duty.

You'll pull the garbage wagon to the dump heap!

Such humiliation... such indignity... making a common dust mop outta me. Grumble!

And Vincent is a flying whisk broom.

Now do a good job!

Oh well, I must do it! Terry said to dust the globe too.

Heaven help me if my friends see me reduced to such a level!
NIGHT FALLS.
AND, SO DOES
ANDY... FAST ASLEEP WITH HIS BROOM.

BUT KISMET IS TOO PEEVED
TO SLEEP.

IT'S ALL YOUR FAULT WE'RE IN THIS MESS,
YA FLXIN-
FLEA?

IT AIN'T
NOT.

ANDY WAKENS,
AN' YOU
CAN ALL
SNOOZE
SOMEPLACE
ELSE?

DID I HEAR
A WHISPER?

BUT OUR HEROES
ARE IN DREAM-LAND NOW.

YES, YOUR HIGHNESS,
KING
KISMET...

I'M THE SULTAN OF SOOUL AND TERRY IS MY SLAVE!

SLAVE?
THROW YOURSELF INTO THE RIVER?

YES,
SIR!

I AM THE MASTER
UNIVERSE...
WHEEEEEE!

NOW I GOTCHA
WHERE I
WANTCHA!

SLAVE?
INFIDEL?

IT'S ABOUT TIME TOO!

YES, SIRE, MASTER...
WHAT IS YOUR WILL?
IN ANDY'S DREAM, TERRY WAITS ON HIM HAND AND FOOT.

YOUR HUMBLE SLAVE IS 100000 DELIGHTED TO DO YOUR BIDDING. DO YOU WISH ANYTHING ELSE?

KING KISMET HUGS TERRY PULL HIM ALL OVER DREAMLAND IN A GILDED COACH.

FASTER, YOU FOOL!

YES, MASTER.

VINCENT MAKES TERRY PAINT HIS FEATHERS WITH BRILLIANT COLORS.

AH YES, SLAVE! NOW YOU MAY DO MY NAILS... AND BRING A MIRROR.

HEAVENS! HOW HANDSOME I AM!

THEN ALL THREE DREAMS MERGE INTO ONE.

MISERABLE SLAVE? HE CAN'T LEARN ANYTHING?

YES... WE'LL HAVE TO PHONE THE AGENCY FOR A NEW SERVANT!

WRETCH! WELL, HAVE YOU NOTHING TO SAY? FOR A CHANGE?

NOTHING, SQUIRES. LONG LIVE KING KISMET, THE SULTAN OF SOOOLI AND THE MASTER OF THE UNIVERSE, VINCENT.
SUDBENLY...

HEF! TERRY IS MY SLAVE!

HE'S MINE!

NOPE! YER BOTH WRONG! HE'S MINE!

THE "SLAVE" TRIES TO INTERFERE.

MASTERS! YES, YOU ARE ALL MY MASTERS. STOP I BEG YOU!

IT IS TOO LATE... KISMET, VINCENT AND ANDY ARE BATTING OVER TERRY.

IT IS FAST AND FURIOUS, WITH TERRY DOGGING HOOPS, BEAK AND FISTS.

NOBODY'S INFRINGIN' ON MY RIGHTS!

OWW! STOP KICKIN'!

A WILD BLOW FROM ANDY SENDS TERRY FLYING INTO THE AIR.

THANKS BROTHER, FER HANDIN' HIM TO ME!

BUT VINCENT'S SHARP BEAK CUTS TERRY AS HE FLIES PAST. THEN KISMET STEPS ON HIM BY ACCIDENT.

OH... OH! I SQUASHED OUR SLAVE!
YOU MURDERERS!

YOU ARE NOT FIT TO RULE ANYBODY... NOT EVEN THE POOR SLAVE YOU HAVE KILLED! NOW YOU SHALL PAY FOR YOUR SINS!

A GIANT HAND WHISKS THEM INTO THE CLOUDS.

ANDY IS DROPPED IN THE MIDDLE OF THE DESERT AMONG BEDOUINS.

KISMET IS MADE A BEAST OF BURDEN.

OH! ONE MIGHT THINK I WAS A CRIMINAL! SOB...

OH, TERRY, SAVE ME! I'LL BE YOUR SLAVE FOR LIFE!

SOB...

SNIFF... BUT TERRY'S DEAD!

VINCENT IS DROPPED INTO SNAKELAND AMONG MILLIONS OF HIS WORST ENEMIES.

OH... OH... MY W-WINGS ARE CLIPPED. I CAN'T GET AWAY! TERRY... WHERE ARE YOU?
BY THIS TIME, TERRY IS WIDE AWAKE.

WHAT'S ALL THE NOISE OUTSIDE?

SOUNDS LIKE MURDER TO ME!

OUCH! STOP!

SLAM BANG CRACK

HASTILY TERRY SLIPS HIS COAT ON.

IT'S THOSE THREE AGAIN! I CAN SMELL IT. THEY'RE NOT HAPPY AWAY FROM TROUBLE!

IN THE COURTYARD, TERRY FINDS ANDY FAST ASLEEP AND WAILING.

OH, DEAR... DON'T HURT ME! I DIDN'T MEAN TO KILL TERRY!!

AND VINCENT TOO?

TERRY'S DEAD!

AN-AN, MY WINGS IS CLIPPED! SOB!

SAY! THEY'RE ALL DREAMIN'!

SHIVER! SHIVER!

OMIGOSH! WAS EVER A CAMEL SO SAD? TERRY!

TERRY! OOOOOH!

TERRY FETCHES A PAIL OF ICE WATER AND...

SURE I'M ALIVE! AND PRETTY SORE TOO! I'M GOIN' BACK TO SLEEP. YOU'D ALL BETTER BE GOOD OR...

GEE, AIN'T HE SWELL?

HE'S A-A-A ANGEL THAT'S WHAT!

AND HE IS BOSS TOO. DON'T FORGET THAT!

LET'S ALL GO BACK TO SLEEP

TERRY! YOU'RE ALIVE!

OF COURSE!

WHY, TERRY, WE'RE ALWAYS GOOD!

WELL, TERRY WON AGAIN AND HE'S GOING BACK TO BED. BUT WHEN HE WAKES UP WHAT NEW MESS CAN HIS PALS HAND HIM? IN NEXT MONTH'S JUNGLE COMICS.
NEAR A WHITE MAN'S CAMP
SIMBA SEES YOUNG BERT
LEWIS PLAYING, UNAWARE OF LURKING DANGER.

SUDDENLY...

THE GORILLA RACES INTO THE JUNGLE WITH THE CHILD...
Bert fights in vain as the vicious ape carries him off through the trees...

Simba follows silently.

Suddenly hunters see Simba.

Get him! He's a beauty!

A bullet creases Simba's shoulder.

Simba speeds into the jungle.

Eluding his pursuers, he reaches a water hole...

Seeing the jungle king wounded, a leopard pack closes in for the kill.
Snarling, the leader of the leopards pounces on Simba.

Though wounded, Simba rages into the killer...

The mighty cats grapple in a fight to the death...

Meanwhile the gorilla takes Bert into wild rocky country...

The boy is imprisoned in a cave...

Help! Let me go!

As the leopard's claws rake, the bullet wound Simba attacks in agonized fury...

His crushing jaws grind into the spotted neck and his foe falls...

The other leopards accept the victorious Simba as their leader...
Simba leads them into the gorilla country... they see the kidnapped boy!

They climb in pursuit...

Suddenly hordes of vicious gorillas attack!

They clash in battle!

Simba discovers Bert...

Oooh, a lion!

As he starts out with the terrified boy, a giant gorilla leaps!

Simba wheels on the ape.

They roll down in mortal combat.
FRENZIED, THE ELEPHANT RUSHES TOWARD A HUGE ROCK.

BUT SIMBA LEAPS CLEAR.

WHY, YOU'RE MY FRIEND!

SIMBA TAKES BERT BACK TO HIS CAMP.

AS THEY APPROACH...

DON'T, DAD! HE SAVED MY LIFE!

THE JUNGLE MONARCH LEAVES THE GRATEFUL PAIR.

SIMBA APPEARS EVERY MONTH IN JUNGLE COMICS!
Mysterious child of the jungle, Wambi lives in the wilds and rules over its animals whose language he speaks and who obey him implicitly. One day, Wambi sees his friend Maggo, the macaw, arguing with Hissa, the snake.

Hissa is about to strike the macaw.

Ogg, Wambi’s pal climbs up to see what is wrong.

Hold, Hissa! Let Maggo alone!
SUDDENLY WAMBI LEANS TOO FAR OVER AND...

OH!

THE FALL KNOCKS HIM OUT COLD...

OGG CARRIES WAMBI TO A STREAM TO REVIVE HIM...

A STRANGER SEES THEM...

NO... I CAN'T SHOOT HIM... I MIGHT HURT THE LAD... BETTER TO SCARE THE BEAST OFF.

I SAY! THAT APE HAS KIDNAPPED THE BOY!

FRIGHTENED BY THE OVERHEAD SHOT, OGG FLEES.

BUT HE REMAINS NEARBY TO WATCH OVER HIS MASTER...

THE LAD IS ONLY UNCONSCIOUS FROM A SPRAINED ARM... I'LL SOON FIX THAT!
HOLD HARD, MELAD... WHILE I PULL YOUR ARM INTO PLACE. THAT'S IT!

YOU REST HERE. I'M GOING TO FILL THIS CANTEEN AT THE STREAM!

SING! BANG!

GUN FIRE!

SAHIB! ARE YOU HURT?

WHY SHOULD ANYONE TRY TO KILL YOU, SAHIB?

IT'S ONLY A SLIGHT THIGH WOUND, LAD, BUT LISTEN...

I AM CAPTAIN FORCE. A WEALTHY RANGOON PLANTER... JUST BEFORE STARTING ON THIS HUNTING TRIP I PUT MY PLANTATION IN THE HANDS OF MY OVERSEER, OTTO SCHMUTZIG.

A FEW DAYS LATER, I WAS RIDING THROUGH THE JUNGLE WHEN TWO MEN TRIED TO KILL ME!

WAMBI REMEMBERS SOMETHING.

AND THAT NIGHT STARTS ON A HUNT FOR FORCES ASSAILANT.

MAGGO SAW TWO MEN IN THE OLD MINE WHERE SHE ROOSTS!
Wamb! Reaches the old mine where Maggo lives.

He walks down a dark corridor and...

Smoke! Fire!

Well, Pete, we must have wounded force. We'll finish the job tomorrow.

Look! That kid heard us! Get him!

Wamb! is soon a helpless, bound captive.

Start for Force's camp! He's wounded and can't defend himself.

We'll shoot him and burn the camp!

I must stop this... but how?
THE FIRE BEGINS TO SPREAD AND MOVES TOWARDS SOME STICKS OF DYNAMITE.

I WONDER WHAT THOSE FUNNY LOOKING STICKS ARE FOR?

AT THAT MOMENT, MAGGO FLIES INTO HER ROOST.

MAGGO, COME HERE!

FIND OGG... BRING HIM TO ME!

NEARER AND NEARER TO THE DEADLY STICKS GOES THE FIRE.

MAGGO FINDS OGG.

NOT A MINUTE TOO SOON THEY REACH WAMB!

QUICKLY OGG UNTIES HIS MASTER.
JUST AS THEY REACH SAFETY, THE CAVE BLOWS UP BEHIND THEM.

THE EXPLOSION SHOWERS SPARKS ON THE TREES, SOON THE JUNGLE IS AFIRE...

BEFORE LONG THE FUGITIVES ARE ENGULFED IN FLAME AND ONCE MORE THEY SMOKE...

WAMBI IS OVERCOME...

OGG PICKS HIM UP AND STAGGERS BRAVELY ON...

AT LAST HE REACHES A STREAM...

OGG REALIZES THAT HE CAN'T SWIM ACROSS WITH WAMBI.

SUDDENLY A BLAZING TREE FALLS ACROSS THE STREAM.
Ogg starts across on this fiery bridge.

But just as he reaches the end.

He slips and falls into the stream.

The shock revives Wambi.

We’ll give them a hot reception, lad!

The villains creep up to forces’ camp.

Sahib! Your foes come to slay you!!

Sahib: Force! Wake up!!

He must be sound asleep but be quiet anyway!
JUNGLE COMICS

But Wambi and Force are ready for them.

Pete goes around from the back. I'll hold 'em here!

I'll get a shot at them from here!

But reinforcements are coming up.

At that moment, Force gets his man.

But the partner comes from the rear.

Hands up!

And then Ogg goes to work.

Stay with me, lad. We'll be pals, and you can keep your ape with you.

No, Sahib, my place is in the forest!

Goodbye, Wambi! And many thanks.

Wambi returns to the forest where another thrilling adventure awaits him in next month's Jungle Comics.

JUNGLE COMICS GOES ON SALE THE 1ST OF EVERY MONTH.
MURDEROUS ARABS WATCH AS A KILLER ELEPHANT, FOLLOWED BY ITS BABY, CHARGES CAMILLA AND ERIC.

THE PEACEFUL CITY....
A LOOKOUT IS KILLED.

WAR!
BY THOR!
WE'LL KILL THEM ALL!

THEY CRASH
IN FURIOUS COMBAT.

STOP! LET ME
TALK TO YOUR CHIEF!
CAMILLA AND THE CHIEF HOLD A PARLEY.

The Arabs caused the war!

Camilla: We will avenge this treachery together!

They plan their campaign and the next day two heavily laden elephants are taken to the Arab fort.

WE CONQUERED CAMILLA AND COME TO SELL OUR LOOT.

Ah! Our plot succeeded!

Guards! Seize these little fools!

Leaving the elephants the Pygmies flee....

That night inside the fort a silent figure creeps from one of the bundles and slips to the ground... it is Camilla!

This must be Eric is imprisoned!
CAMILLA HURLS THE IRON BAR!

I'LL HAVE YOU FREE IN A MINUTE, ERIC!

CAMILLA!

WE MUST OPEN THE GATE FOR THE PYGMIES!

BUT THEY ARE ATTACKED BY HOWLING ARABS....

CAMILLA CLIMBS TO DRAW THE UPPER BOLT...

IN A HAIL OF FLYING DAGGERS CAMILLA REACHES THE TOP OF THE WALL... BUT ERIC IS AGAIN TAKEN PRISONER.
She leaps down into the jungle.

The gate is unbolted, but the enemy is massed inside.

Lead us, O Camilla! We will conquer or perish in the attempt.

With blood-curling war cries, the fierce little warriors slash through the ranks of the murderous Arabs.

The pygmies attack!

Here's the last one, Camilla.

After thanking the victorious pygmies, Camilla and Eric leave for their city.

Camilla appears in JUNGLE COMICS every month.

Roy Lance, intrepid explorer sits with his pal, Art Kennedy, famous news photographer in a tiny out-post cafe.

ROY, THE NEWS-TIME SYNDICATE WILL GIVE ME A SMALL FORTUNE FOR PICTURES OF THE TUTAN TRIBE AND THEIR LEGENDARY CROCODILE MARSH!

IMPOSSIBLE, ART! YOU MIGHT AS WELL SHOOT PICTURES ON THE MOON.

I'VE NEVER SEEN THE CROCODILE MARSH MYSELF BUT THERE'S A TUTAN NATIVE OUTSIDE.

WOW! WHERE'S MY CAMERA?

INSTANTLY ART SNATCHES UP HIS EQUIPMENT AND EXPLODES HIS FLASH BULB IN THE STARTLED SAVAGES FACE.
WHITE DOG?
BAD MEDICINE
FOR TUTAN FACE
TO GET CAUGHT
IN PICTURE
BOX?

HEY? HE'S SERIOUS?
HE'S GONNA WRECK MY CAMERA?

IN HIS HASTY RETREAT,
KENNEDY TRIPS OVER A ROCK.

A SECOND LATER, ROY RUSHES FORWARD IN DEFENSE OF HIS FRIEND.

BRAZZAVILLE CAFE

ROY DARTS IN TO DEFLECT THE FATAL THRUST.

YOU'RE NOT KILLING ANYBODY!

BUT THE SAVAGE
HAS ALREADY
GRABBED A KEEN BLADE.

I KILL YOU!

DROP THAT
KNIFE EASY
LIKE.

OR DO I HAVE TO MAKE YOU?

NOW WE'LL JUST REVERSE THE MURDEROUS INTENTIONS,

I DIG.
JUNGLE COMICS

THE NATIVE RETURNS ROY'S BLOW WILDLY.

ME KILL YOU?

SA-A, IS THAT THE ONLY WORD YOU KNOW?

WELL, HERE'S ANOTHER S-0CK, SOCK! AND THIS IS IT!

SUBDUE THE TUTAN'S STUMBLES OFF, MUMBERTING ANGRY THREATS OF REVENGE.

WE'RE MARKED.

NEXT MORNING, ROY STRIDES INTO KENNEDY'S ROOM.

I'VE GOT A SWELL IDEA FOR... HEY! ART! ART!

MASTER NO HERE. HE LEAVE FOR TUTAN COUNTRY WITH TWO MEN... TAKE CAMERA TOO!

LOBO, YOUR MASTER IS A FOOL! HE'S OUT TO KILL HIMSELF... I'M GOING AFTER HIM!

MEANWHILE, NOT FAR OFF, ART KENNEDY ENTERS THE DREADED TUTAN'S TERRITORY.

SUDDENLY, A SWIFT ARROW FLIES ACROSS KENNEDY'S PATH. A POISONED TUTAN ARROW.

AND AT THE SAME MOMENT, ROY IS COMING CLOSER TO THE SCENE.

THE ARROW TIP SINKS INTO ART'S CHIEF PORTER.

HOPE ART'S O.K.

OMUNGU! IT'S THE TUTANS!
THE SECOND PORTER DROPS FROM A FATAL ARROW IN HIS HEART.

WELL, ART? YOU DIDN'T EXPECT TO SEE ME, DID YOU?

WHIRLING AROUND, THE CAMERAMAN FINDS ROY LANCE AT HIS SIDE.

NO, BUT YOU'VE NEVER BEEN SO WELCOME BEFORE!

ART DUCKS BEHIND A ROCK AND OPENS FIRE WITH HIS COLT.

THE MEN FELL BACK TO ESCAPE THE SAVAGES AND SUDDENLY...

SUDDENLY THE SOUND OF ANOTHER REVOLVER ENTERS THE FRAY.

SAY, ART... LET'S CUT THROUGH THIS CAVERN, MAYBE WE CAN SHAKE-'EM OFF!

DOWN LONG WINDING TUNNELS THEY RACE.

H-M-H... SOMEBODY VERY THOUGHTFULLY LEFT US A CANOE TO USE!!

UNTIL THEY COME TO A RUSHING UNDERGROUND STREAM.

I DON'T KNOW WHERE THIS IS TAKING US, BUT I HAVE A FEELING THERE'LL BE EXCITEMENT AHEAD!
THEY ROUND A BEND IN THE CAVERN AND....

FER CRYIN' OUT LOUD.. LOOK!!

BEFORE THEM, AS FAR AS THEY CAN SEE, STRETCHES A MASS OF SLITHERING, HIDEOUS CROCODILES.. CLOSE PACKED, THEY RESEMBLE A RIVER OF THICK GREEN LOGS.

THE TUTAN CROC MARSH! WOW! A CHANCE IN A MILLION! I ONLY HOPE I BROUGHT ENOUGH FILM!

SUDDENLY, A FLASHING SPEAR WHIZZES OVER THEIR HEADS.

HOWLING SAVAGES RUSH DOWN THE NARROW LEDGE. THE MEN ARE TRAPPED.

TUTANS!! THEY FOLLOWED US!!

BUT... ART!! TURN THE CAMERA ON THEM!! STOP!! WHITE MAN'S BIG POWER MACHINE KILL YOU!! terrified by the strange machine, the tutans' retreat but one native braver than the rest; hurls a rock at the white men.

roy and art step back to dodge the rock and they hurl toward the dreaded crocodile marsh.

meanwhile, the tutan chief experiments with art's camera.

i no fear, nobody!!

in the marsh, the reptiles fasten greedy eyes on their victims.

oh, oh!! why does it have to end this way?

i turn machine on them... kill them fast!

i've got a water-proof flash bulb in my pocket!!

kennedy hurls the bulb exploding it in the reptiles' ugly snouts.

the hideous man-eaters back to safety... the two men climb to shore.

great white men have much magic to escape sacred crocodiles... we your brothers!

say! the tutans think we're gods or somethin'!

thanks, brother! and chief, you ought to go to hollywood as a cameraman... you got swell shots of us playing lead to the crocodiles!!
